

BIG SEND-OFF:
children at Naburn Primary School, near York, say goodbye to Sheila Barnes,
who is retiring
from her teaching post

by Haydn Lewis

haydn.lewis@ycp.co.uk

THE end of the school term was marked with festivities at schools across York and North Yorkshire.

Treasured teacher Sheila Barnes retired after 20 years at Naburn Primary School.

Head teacher Rupert Griffiths said that during that time, the school had grown from two classes to its current four, and a generation of children had started their school life in Sheila's capable hands.

He said: "She has also been a well-loved and highly-respected member of the local community, which is absolutely essential for a village school like Naburn.

"Children, staff and parents will be very sorry to see her go, but we wish her a very happy retirement.

